Living Memorial Soil

£128

Shown price includes VAT and delivery to UK mainland.

Living Memorial RTN blended soil helps you memorialise your loved one in nature, without harming the environment.

This specialised soil blend is made to neutralise the low pH of ashes and balance the high concentrations of sodium and potassium, amongst others, which would affect the root development of the plants/trees growing nearby.

One tin is enough for a full set of ashes. Simple and easy instructions are included in the tin.

For more information please click here.

Memorialising a loved one by planting a tree, bush with their ashes, or scattering them in nature, is a very common wish. Ashes can unfortunately be harmful to plant life and the environment, due to its low pH and high levels of sodium, potassium and other cations. This can lead to the plant and its surroundings showing deficiencies or even for the plant to die.

Living Memorial RTN blended soil helps you memorialise your loved one in nature, without harming the environment.

This specialised soil blend is made to neutralise the harmful components of ashes, to support plant life to thrive. For more information behind the science of the soil please click here.